CLASSICS

Study trips to the classical lands, anywhere in Greece and Italy, closely aligned with your curriculum. Other trips to consider are classical sites in France, Spain or the UK. ArchaeoMuse Academy can organise unique and bespoke programmes in places tailored to exactly what your students are currently studying. Examples include stays in Cumae, Bay of Naples area to support the study of book VI of Virgil's Aeneid, as part of the UK GCSE or A-Levels Latin and Classical Civilisations course. Another program can be based in the Argolid region, around Mycenae, to support the study of Classical Greek and Classical Civilisation. Nimes, Provence, also provides a wonderful base for Classics trips, possibly in conjunction with the French department. The abundance of classical sites, monuments and museums make this region an excellent base for learning outside the classroom.

HISTORY

Study trips to historical sites in the UK, France, Spain, Italy or Greece that are closely aligned with your curriculum. Consult Clio, the Muse of History, for a few examples of historically-based study trips. Follow the footsteps of Julius Caesar, for example, in Italy, France and the UK. Visit the places where Hannibal fought the Romans in Italy. Follow the path of Spartacus' invasion of Italy from Sicily to the slopes of Mount Vesuvius.

Other possibilities are sites in the UK, France, Italy and Greece dating from the Greco-Roman times and earlier through the Middle Ages, Renaissance and later. Attica or Argolid (Greece), Provence and the Cotswolds all provide similar environments.

RELIGION & PHILOSOPHY

Shift your classroom to Athens, Rome or London and conduct your lessons in museums, libraries and inspirational places where many of the philosophers and religious figures actually lived. A programme focused on Ancient Greek Philosophy could be based in Athens, centring around Plato's Academy and Aristotle's Lyceum. The context provided by the location where these two great figures produced their body of work will inspire your young philosophers to better understand and appreciate the ideas. Similar programmes can be organised in Italy, France and the UK.
